

What Makes An Event At Sea So Unique?

Here is an actual letter we received from a guest on our last Bible prophecy cruise.

Hello Gregg,

I've been thinking about the cruise since I returned home and wanted to offer feedback.

This was my first Prophecy conference, and all of my expectations were surpassed. Booking the trip was easy; Gregg and his staff answered all of my questions and were very gracious and helpful when I experienced a computer glitch. Laura's communications were very clear and helpful, as were all of the emails that walked us through the processes of hotel booking, travel insurance, shuttles, etc. The Paradise Travel staff made managing the many details as smooth as possible.

The ship was gorgeous, immaculate and very comfortable, and the food was fabulous (and overabundant). Staff members on board went out of their way to see that the guests' comfort was a priority and to answer any questions.

Usually when I attend a conference, it's for a whirlwind weekend, where I'm bombarded with information for two to three days, then return home with my head spinning with new ideas. This cruise provided such a wonderful format: five speakers, each of whom spoke twice, sprinkled throughout the five days. This allowed time to process their information, relax and eat, and read some of the materials we received, before going to another session.

Each speaker offered books, DVDs or other materials for free or for very reasonable prices; I came home with a new wealth of information which I can absorb and share. We also appreciated the smaller-group time with the speakers, where we heard their testimonies and got to learn more about them as individuals. The division of the group into two, with alternate seating preferences, was also very thoughtful. I was very impressed by the attention to every detail and tremendous advance planning which made this cruise a life-changing experience.

Thank you so much for your outstanding work in making this experience possible. I hope to be able to attend another conference at sea. Blessings to you as you continue to provide opportunities for others to know the Truth which sets us free.

Your sister in Christ,
Terilee Allsop-Howat
